

What is the EcoDine Forestry Initiative?

The EcoDine Forestry Initiative is a collaborative project of native woodland forestry preservation and planting, providing wildlife habitat, education and cultural heritage for generations to come.

Recognized as a leading solution in the fight against rising CO2 levels worldwide, forests trap carbon dioxide in their bark, wood and roots.

Current preservation and planting locations include Alberta, British Columbia, and North East USA and include both private lands and public access conservation areas.

EcoDine's Forestry Initiative promises to unite millions restaurant goers across the country, as they join other in leaving a legacy of nature and beauty for generations to come.

In support of this initiative your bill will include a 50¢ contribution per diner.

Thank you for your participation.
